U.S. Senate passes Inflation Reduction Act

The U.S. Senate included several health care provisions in the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 \(H.R. 5376\). The bill is a roughly $700 billion social spending package and includes climate change and tax provisions.

Health care highlights include:

- Allowing Medicare to negotiate drug prices on a limited set of drugs, including insulin. The government and pharmaceutical companies can establish prices for a subset of higher cost, sole source drugs covered through Medicare Part B and Part D. The price negotiated between the government and manufacturer must be lower than a ceiling price based on a formula in the law.
- Extending the expanded eligibility and value of the Affordable Care Act Marketplace subsidies authorized through the American Rescue Plan Act for three years. The American Rescue Plan Act expanded eligibility for subsidies to people above 400% of the federal poverty level and lowered the premium percentage at every income level.

IHA is pleased to see the Senate take steps to make health care more accessible to low- and middle-income families through the Affordable Care Act and is taking steps to lower prescription drug costs for Medicare patients.

Other provisions include:

- Addressing climate change through a combination of tax changes and spending subsidies.
- Imposing a 15% corporate tax minimum.
- Including polices to address carbon emissions.
- Investing in domestic energy production and manufacturing.
- Providing $80 billion over the next 10 years for tax enforcement and compliance.

- Reducing the deficit.

The bill was passed in the Senate 51-50 and was considered under reconciliation procedures. It was amended during floor debate and will likely be considered by the U.S. House of Representatives Friday, Aug. 12.
